1. Describe the specific teaching and learning issues being addressed by the proposal.

Students have lots of debts and need to know personal finance. Teaching materials do not use coherent examples on financial issues faced by students.

2. Describe the revised specific teaching and learning issues being addressed by the proposal (if applicable):

See report.

3. Describe the development activities involved addressing the learning or teaching issue.

See report.

4. Describe the learning outcomes attained by the project.

See report.

5. Describe unexpected outcomes, if any.

See report.

6. Describe the impact of the completed project on your colleagues, department, college, or community.

It is still at an early stage to see impact beyond the courses.

7. Describe how the project can be a model, template, or prototype for use by other instructors.

Once the teaching materials are organized (e.g., as a book manuscript), they can be adapted by colleagues as a model.

8. Describe the technology used to help address the issues described in the proposal.

We mainly teach students how to program and develop education games.

9. Describe products, if any, that are a result of the project.

We are adding features to the game to make it useful for Personal Finance course.

10. Describe the future plans for this project, if any.

Enrich the game and systematically organize all teaching materials.
